In the field, the lightweight alloy forged receiver insures a quick swinging gas operated semi-automatic shotgun all day long. The inter-choke system gives you one gun that will work in all hunting situations just by changing the inter-choke tube to fit your needs. Add to that the SKB Universal Automatic System and you can shoot any 2 3/4" and 3" load without changing barrels. And finally, the SKB magazine cut-off makes it safe and easy to empty the chamber of your shotgun without unloading the magazine. All SKB's have a ventilated rib barrel with checkered walnut stock and forend. The gun capacity is five rounds, including one in the chamber, and the plug included will reduce it to three. The receiver of the 1300 Upland is black and anodized. The 1900 has a hunting scene etched into it. Both guns include a manual safety.
